I had an annoying skin tag on my eyelid. It got large enough that when I blinked I could really feel it. I started putting castor oil on my eyelid every night before bed. It is now just a faint dot on my eyelid.

I've been using castor oil on my eyelids and on skin tags with great success.. I also used it on my hands with gloves on to get rid of the buildup from arthritis.. works fantastic

I used castor oil to completely rid my eyes of dry eye. It took several months of applying a drop at night, but it worked, and I haven't had dry eyes for two or three years since that time.

Did you put it in your eyes like an eye drop? This article only mentioned eyelids so was curious.

"Castor oil may even be useful for reliving common infections like ringworm, jock itch (tinea cruris) and athlete's foot." How about toenail fungus? It has got to be about one of the most stubborn things to get rid of. Had a family member who was prescribed Pharma fare. It was about the last things in the world they should have been prescribed as they had so many health issues. The biggest risk was liver damage. The biggest offense - it didn't work.

The yeast that causes toenail fungus is systemic. I started taking a homemade saccharomyces boulardii probiotic about 3 weeks ago and my toenails are now clear. The recipe is in Alberto Villoldol's book, Grow A New Body. Puree 2 cups of ripe fruit that has been cooked for 20 minutes. Allow to cook to body temperature then add 2 capsules of saccharomyces boulardii (Florastor). Put in a bowl and leave in a warm place (a fermenter or an oven with just the pilot light or oven light on), around body temp, for 2 to 3 days, until all the sugars in the fruit have been digested. It will then taste very sour.. Then take 1 tablespoon each morning first thing, before eating anything because food will interfere with it's effectiveness against the candida yeast. The no sugar diet in the book probably contributed to the effect but it's worth a try even without the diet, I think.

Manuka oil? Is it like eucalyptus or tea tree? How much added to castor oil? Goldenseal root tea was a common historic herbal treatment for irritated inflammation of eyes.

Do you put the castor oil over the eyelids or drop into your eyes? Thank you. I have been using castor oil on my brows and lashes for years and also pat it on my face, over my moisturizer (alternating with other oils).

I rub it on my eyes and brows at night when I go to bed
