

mirandola

Quoting the article: "Oncologists are further constrained by the "standard of care" prescribed by oncology medical boards and the drug industry. If they go against the established standard of care, they're susceptible to having their license reprimanded or even taken away" That is dictatorship. America, the Land of the Free? Got change? If no, then plug for the cause of freedom: Corporations are NOT People!

Posted On 07/25/2017

Almond

Corporations are not people. If you want responsive action, you must find something that bleeds. Often, the only way you get change is by your interaction with a person. You need to find out who has the authority to make change and move in a direction that is helpful to you. Then, if persuasion does not work, you can apply pressure. In many ways, I have learned to ask, "Would you bet your job on that?" Then, your request becomes personal and gets their attention. This works esp. well with insurance companies. You must so often go up the chain of command that it is easier if you just start at the top.

Yes, I am familiar with "standard of care". I once had a doctor who told me everything I was asking for in cancer treatment was responsible and good medicine but that he would not help me because it was considered "nonstandard medicine". I was horrified at the words coming out of the mouth of a man who had taken an oath to do no harm. Essentially, what he was saying is that he would rather see me dead than take personal risks. That is not the kind of person you should trust with your life and well-being. (Let that be a lesson to you and always be very conscientious and circumspect when choosing a doctor. Take time to investigate them fully and make sure they are on your side.)

I told this despicable piece of human trash, "You are a g-d- coward. I will not have you on my medical team. I do not even want you in my presence. Then, I asked that a note be placed in my records stating that this particular doctor was never ever to have any access to me, make decisions on my behalf or participate in any way in my medical care. My good instincts told me that I was not safe in his care and he would not act in my best interest.

Posted On 07/25/2017

forbiddenhealing

AKA..defensive medicine..to prevent lawsuits and keep killing patients..legally.

Posted On 07/25/2017

mirandola

Forbiddenhealing, well said! It seems that murder is legal. What more can they rationalize under the so-called law? They do it every day, usurping the Constitution as written. then they say go fight for your country, defend your freedom. The truth is that the fight has nothing to do with freedom. War does not protect it, it only kills and pillages yet more. The way to fight for our freedom is to stand up for the Constitution and object whenever it is being usurped. I think it is only because Americans remain silent, at large, that they can literally get away with murder. If the larger crowds were to invoke the laws, and speak up for them, we might have a different picture. I did say ,the larger crowds, not the small groups and not even "merely" 100s of thousands.....

Almond, WAY TO GO!!!! I love your spunk, that you asked for a note to your file that this man is not to go anywhere near you! GOOD FOR YOU!!! And you are right, to put the pressure on is unfortunately what works. I wish people were moral enough to give a care just when we voice a concern. But often times, they don't (there are fortunately, still many good people out there). For those times, to put the pressure on is in fact the only way that works. What a bummer that life comes down to that sometimes.

Posted On 07/25/2017

Krofter

How did "the standard of care" come to negate the Hippocratic oath, "First, do no harm".

Posted On 07/25/2017

iamblessediam

Yo krofter...in a word - GREED! If I poison someone, I can go to jail to jell - and rightfully so! But if BIG Pharma or Chemical does it, they get FDA, etc., etc., etc. APPROVAL - go figure?!?! LBP!

Posted On 07/25/2017

healer99

Almond: Hmm, the doctor you were talking to responded with the truth, yet it seems you spanked him pretty hard for it. Next time he will know not to admit to anything, instead to simply shame the person and spout the company line. Courage has to start somewhere, usually with small actions. I hope you did not punish a small act of courage that could have eventually turned into larger acts.

Posted On 07/26/2017

forbiddenhealing

Or how bout baking soda? If an alkaline/oxygen rich environment can be restored to a cancer, it reverts to normal cellular behavior....Hadn't I seen my dog's breast cancer reverse in one week, I'd never have believed it....The public is scared of cancers and made to think cancer is some unconquerable death sentence that requires ultra-complex measures that only the high priests of medical voodoo can delay...meanwhile oncology boards refuse any but the most profitable therapies to be tested. Wise up folks, it's all fake...learn>>>do...start w bone broths, Mega C, minerals and a low glycemic alkalizing diet and build a protocol from there; www.forbiddenhealingforum.com/forum-comments

Posted On 07/25/2017

forbiddenhealing

NJ...Yes, German Sheps, unspayed/unbred are likely to develop breast cancer..happened before to a previous dog, maybe a hormonal or stagnation issue....In anycase I injected baking soda solution 2-3Xs in and around gland...and could not believe it worked! The breast turned fr black to O2-rich pink in a week...She lived another 6 yrs.

Posted On 07/25/2017

seg

Yup some additional info on baking soda..Dr Simoncini has been using it to cure cancers but he like so many other natural health providers has been "silenced" and cannot do so anymore..Lovely system ain't it..www.cancertutor.com/simoncini

Posted On 07/25/2017

Almond

You cannot make good health decisions until you have information. Once you have knowledge, you must question everything to make sure that the protocol you design is based on a solid rational and logical foundation instead of on "shifting sands". Here are 3 books I recommend to summarize basic types of therapies. CANCER THERAPY-Moss. OPTIONS-Walters GOURMET AND MEDICINAL MUSHROOMS-Stamets (His booklet MYCOMEDICINALS is very short, but good.)

The reason I started chemotherapy was because I knew nothing about cancer when I was diagnosed so I relied on my doctor's judgment. However, I am a very proactive person, and against all odds at a time when patients were not supposed to question doctors, I demanded educational resources. Maybe I was arrogant, or just confident, but I figured I was as smart as a doctor. I received permission from the head of the hospital to fully access the hospital library and the librarian was told to cooperate with my requests for obtaining online information. (This was when computers were still rare.) I made extensive use of a very helpful doctor's huge personal library which was even better than the hospital library. I think I read each and every book on the many rows of book shelves.

I arrived at a simple conclusion. Chemotherapy is poison. I was already very sick. I needed to support my body, not poison it. So, that is why I quit chemo. I did not have all the answers, but I realized putting poison into my body would simply increase the burden to recovery. You know, it is scary when you have to strike out on your own with uncertain direction. As it was in those days. However, I knew that I have a good head on my shoulders and I was the best hope I had for my own survival. It was the only chance I had, so I took it. I am not brave, just not foolish. I was absolutely terrified, but knew I had to be responsible for myself. Fortunately, I was living in a rural area not greatly susceptible to bureaucratic oversight. - continued-

Posted On 07/25/2017

Almond

-continued- I have seen many patients in urban centers forced to accept unwanted medical care under threat or coercion. The treatment options listed in the Mercola article are pretty minimal. Patients actually have many options. The treatment should be tailored to the cancer diagnosis, though. There is no one-size-fits-all regimen. A protocol needs to be supervised and altered as changes occur over time. Do not be in too much of a hurry to liberalize a strict dietary regimen without good reason. Give it time to work thoroughly. In all ways, return to nature.

I might also mention that I have had success by including the homeopathic remedy carcinosis for breast cancer. This option is little known. Also, check out Hoxsey for certain cancers, Venus Fly Trap, mycomedicinals, diet and supplements, and the Rife bare machine (and other resonant frequency energy machines). It is not enough to follow the plans you purchase for building such a device. You should work with a knowledgeable technical person to iron out any bugs in the directions as many machines are ineffective as constructed.

Posted On 07/25/2017

mirandola

Iscador (homeopathic mistletoe. Do not use mistletoe in and of itself, toxic, use the homeopathic only) Medicinal mushrooms www.alibris.com/Medicinal-Mushrooms-Christopher-Hobbs-L-AC/book/761173..

Juicing for alkalinity Chlorophyll Turmeric Raw foods, very little cooked meat Ligustrum for adrenal support <http://.../>

Hormone balancing with your naturopathic physician Lots of vegetables All organic food, no exceptions

Exercise Cottage cheese in blender with flax seed oil (Johanna Budwig protocol) www.budwigcenter.com/johanna-budwig-biography

Learn more thetruthaboutcancer.com and here www.christopherhobbs.com/database

Read Paul Pitchford's book Healing with Whole Foods, cover to cover (not about cancer specifically, but fantastic book, East/West perspective merging modern Western nutritional chemistry with Traditional Chinese nutrition) Reduce chemical exposure including soaps, dish soaps, detergents, home building materials, etc <http://www.afmsafecoat.com> for alternative less-toxic building and paint materials

Cancer requires the guidance of a naturopathic and/or integrative/mainstream physician, working hand and glove as a team. Ask your naturopath who specializes in cancer about the above.

Posted On 07/25/2017

iamblessediam

mirandola...don't forget ellagic acid, medical cannabis and structured water - me thinks the "lack" of the latter - structured water - will eventually be recognized as the "root cause" - beyond stress - of the disease process - do the research. LBP!

Posted On 07/25/2017

truthwillprevail

Dead cancer patients don't talk. Another relative dead from chemo. She would have lived a little longer had she not done anything about the stage 4 liver/pancreatic cancer. However, something good has come out of it. Her husband has now awakened to what the medical system really is...and with 4 grown kids and 12 grandchildren, that is 16 people who will now be influenced not to trust the disease management and profiteering system; and to take responsibility for their own health and do their own research...Which is what I have been saying for the last 10 yrs. But no one listens...until they have either a personal experience or experience of a close loved one. Unfortunately it seems that direct experience and pain are some of the only sure ways that people will get clued into the truth.

Posted On 07/25/2017

seg

truth, dead man tells no tales..Every cloud has a silver lining though...Hopefully and as you mentioned the rest of the family will not fall prey to this evil..Life has a way of teaching us and i firmly believe life's lesson learned are seldom or never forgotten...Best to you and the family...

Posted On 07/25/2017

Almond

Cancer has never been the result of a deficiency of chemo. Recently, I had to walk away from a man who is dying of cancer without helping him. he will not live long. I can see that his mind is made up and he is resigned to allowing doctors to do with him whatever they will. I think he knows he is dying, but he lacks the confidence to be unconventional and leave the illusive security of having modern medicine decisions made for him.

Standard patients die at standard rates, in standard manners, in standard time periods. In most cases, cancer involves a predisposition that cannot be "cured", only monitored and controlled through various forms of healthy living. The most fortunate patients are those who discover that their cancer results from some environmental poisoning and are able to detoxify and eliminate the cause... thus reducing the burden on their body and allowing energy to be used for recovery.

Posted On 07/25/2017

desertpat

I'm really happy to see this article as it's what I've long believed. We all know stories like these: (1) My friend Dave was a big believer in anything allopathic, so followed the cancer protocols for two years, until he was declared cancer free. He died a few months later of multiple organ failure. (2) My neighbor Marlene was utterly terrified when she was diagnosed with cancer. She and her husband had a wonderful life, full of travel and lunches out together. But that all ended with the diagnosis. I shared what I knew (gently), but she could not bring herself to try anything except what the doctor ordered. She died after two years of utter misery. (3) I was in the IV room at my naturopath's office for Vitamin C infusions. The man sitting next to me every week turned out to be an MD, also doing Vitamin C. He told me he prescribed chemo and radiation as required by law (standard of care), but that he would never subject a family member to those treatments. He had taken one relative (his wife, I think) to Germany for an alternative treatment. Most of us would not be able to afford that, so things we can do on our own, inexpensively, may be our best hope. I printed off this article for my files. Thank you.

Posted On 07/25/2017

seg

pat yup that is the nature of the beast, the Pharmaceutical cartels have hijacked our health care system, which has essential changed the Hippocratic oath to "first DO harm." Through bribery Doctors, Pharmacist and even Nurses have been conned to market and dispense their garbage, while selling their souls in the process..Interesting times we're living in...

Posted On 07/25/2017

stanleybecker

chemo is pro cancer - how else can Big Money and their investment vehicle also known as the pharmaceutical industry or Rockefeller Medicine keep the dosh rolling in? - Big Business is "BIG" because it turns health into disease - no other reason

Posted On 07/25/2017

seg

Repeat business Stan, that's how the "model" has been carefully crafted to rake em in...But it's just not money there are after, it is the power/ability to dictate and control everything...This might come as a surprise to some, but many other orgs are seeing how effective this model is and have also started to latch on fir a piece o' the pie..It didn't happen overnight tho, it takes time to eat a clock, especially when you go back for seconds :)

Posted On 07/25/2017

otis101

stan, the pharmaceutical industry/Rockerfeller Medicine have lots of help. The Main Stream Media (MSM) with their 24/7 toxic fake news keeping folks around the world on the edge of their stressful seats wondering what calamity will be next. Then you have non-stop wars dislocating and injuring millions. Plus major corporations producing toxic food that is consumed cradle to grave. And lets not forget all of the radiation leaking from nuclear plants around the world with a Chernobyl and Fukushima added for good measure. And depleted uranium (DU) munitions used in Kosovo and used non-stop in the Middle East for 25 years that I am aware of. DU has a half life of several billion years and when used on the battle field becomes fine dust particles that gets inhaled by locals. The dust is lifted into the atmosphere and travels around the world, known to set off radiation detectors, and gets inhaled in minute amounts by millions resulting in lung cancer slowly growing. My awareness of these facts make me sick with sadness as I am sure it does with millions of others around the world.

Posted On 07/25/2017

Sheelagh

I may be a cynic but I believe that most oncologists will choose their livelihood over their patients every time. The best ones won't make it too hard for you when you politely decline "standard treatment" when they know that it won't do any good. However, there may be some medical treatments that may be appropriate for some people in some circumstances and each case is unique. In my experience, we have to fight for our own lives, be very discerning when it comes to doctors and treatment options (many do more harm than good) and research night and day with every ounce of energy and resources you have, to find a way through. That's what I do. Don't make anyone your guru.

Posted On 07/25/2017

desertpat

Many of us in America know we are hardly The Land of the Free! We are the land of money, and more money. For starters, it's insane that we have a health insurance "industry." It has nothing whatsoever to do with health. You know there's a problem when courses at medical schools are designed and even sometimes taught by representatives of the pharmaceutical industry. MDs in America now prescribe, that's what they do. They could almost practice their professions with a spread sheet lining up symptoms with a pharmaceutical, never mind what caused the symptoms. I'm told by a physician friend that being a good diagnostician is the holy grail of the profession.

Posted On 07/25/2017

Maritt

Great article Dr Mercola! Recently an oncologist told a cancer patient (breast cancer that metastasised to pancreatic and liver cancer) that she was too weak for chemo but then administered half a bag of chemo. The next day she could not walk and died 10 days later.

Posted On 07/25/2017

CocoaCin

Apparently free speech is no longer allowed here. I clicked on a postings "Like" and the posting disappeared during the refresh. The posting had a (-4) rating and suggested that DR Mercola left out (RSO) Rick Simpson Oil which is extracted from the Cannabis Plant. I see no reason for the moderators to delete a persons post who was trying to help as it has been proven many times that Cannabis can help heal some types of cancer. It will be interesting to see how long this post last. This type of filtering of information is against free speech and means this site is not totally honest which is detrimental to us all. Shame on you who ever deleted the post.

Posted On 07/25/2017

iamblessediam

Two additional items not covered are ellagic acid and structured water - as a start on ellagic acid: [jonbarron.org/article/truth-about-ellagic-acid-and-red-raspberries] - as a start on structured water: [www.naturesalternatives.com/.../mikesell.html] AND Dr. Mu Shik Jhon of the Dept. of Materials Science and Engineering at the Korean Institute of Science and Technology, and the man considered the world's foremost authority on structured water, said this: "Aging is a loss of Hexagonal Water from organs, tissues and cells, and an overall decrease in total body water." Keep in mind, ANY disease process is an AGING process: [www.pacifichealthcenter.com/blog]. Now...about those "disappearing" comments - I'm not certain if it's an IT systems issue or deliberate by the moderators - based on experience, it cuts both ways;-))))! LBP!

Posted On 07/25/2017

seg

Cocoa my experience tells me nothing in this life is free..Every once in a while i would get a telemarketer telling me, sir you won this or that.. Whenever i hear something is free i just shake my head, politely decline, hang up or just walk away..

Posted On 07/25/2017

Maritt

..... or it's just a system issue. I sometimes experience issues where the system fail to 'load' my message. This site published many articles on benefits of cannabis oil.

Posted On 07/25/2017

debmarch

In March this year my dog was diagnosed with disseminated histiocytic sarcoma a very aggressive and terminal cancer. The Animal hospital who did CT scans, blood work, lymph gland drainage and other in depth tests, advised us to have immediate surgery to remove the tumour from the dogs mouth, followed by chemotherapy, followed by radiotherapy and even then they said that he may lose his nose and possibly his eye during the chemotherapy. My dog is terrified of vets and so we opted for alternatives. Since his diagnosis was have been PH ing all his water, as cancer loves acid - of which there is a lot in tap water. He is on a high fish oil supplement and for the last 90 days he has been on a daily dose of medical cannabis - given orally at bedtime. We were told by the Animal hospital that he would lose weight - he has lost no weight and still maintains his weight at 80KG. We were told he would become lethargic - he is like a puppy! Full of energy. He should not be here now - according to the official prognosis. I knew NOTHING about medical cannabis - but in total desperation I felt that it was at least worth a try. The animal hospital say "we are slowly moving towards a miracle". So many human trials now involved medical cannabis with fantastic results. It is just such a shame that the 'medics' are now coming round to advocating medical cannabis, but are saying that it works best in conjunction with chemotherapy. Shame on them! If I or any of my family became seriously ill - I know what I would be taking and it wouldn't be a pill or a medical therapy. It would be a plant! God bless Rick Simpson who has dedicated so much of his life to making this knowledge public. If you are facing a medical diagnosis with very little or no hope, look up medical cannabis - as a 60 year old grandmother I did just that - out of total desperation - I am just so glad that I did!

Posted On 07/26/2017

melmelby

Excellent article. but why would one want to convert T3 to T4?

Posted On 07/25/2017

Garlicmeister

Memelby -

Good question...As I recall, that is the form it must be in for the thyroid to actually use it. Of course, I could be wrong but I think that is it; the body processes convert T3 to T4 and that is the only form the thyroid can actually use.

Posted On 07/26/2017

Guillermou

Most deaths from cancer are due to metastasis, the journey that stem cells take through the body. Chemotherapy and radiotherapy is ineffective and has serious side effects in suppressing stem cells. For this to happen, some of them acquire particular properties: through fundamentally epigenetic mechanisms they become more "liquid", they detach more easily from the tumor mass. But they also have to be capable of starting a new tumor wherever they nest. In particular, a receptor called CD36, responsible for introducing fatty acids into cells, is abnormally active in these cells. Natural substances against stem cells are Epigallocatechin-3-gallate (EGCG) (Green tea).

Beta carotene (carrot). Green leafy vegetables. Delphinidin (blueberry, raspberry). Isothiocyanate (Cruciferous vegetables). Linalool (Mint). Lycopene (Grapefruit, tomato). Quercetin (Capers, onion). Resveratrol (Grapes, plums, berries). Silibinin (Milk Thistle). Ursolic acid (Thyme, basil, oregano). Vitamin D3 (Fish, egg yolk, beef) and the complete extract of some plants are capable of killing CSCs.

www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/.../PMC7523548 .---- Aging is largely defined as a gradual and progressive time-dependent decline in cellular and organ functions of living organisms, leading to increased susceptibility to chronic diseases, including cancer and death.

Senescent cells are involved in a series of biological functions, from embryogenesis to aging. An excessive accumulation of senescent cells is associated with a decrease in regenerative capacity and chronic inflammation and mitochondrial dysfunction, characterized by a reduced oxidative capacity and the consequent increase in oxidative damage, contributes decisively and significantly to diseases and biological aging.

Guillermou

Studies are investigating the use of calorie restriction (CR) mimetic substances capable of producing the same effect. These include some phytonutrients such as oleuropein, hydroxytyrosol, epigallocatechin gallate, fisetin, quercetin and curcumin and minerals such as magnesium and selenium. Some of them also have senolytic effects, which promote the apoptosis of defective cells that accumulate over the years (senescent cells) and alter normal metabolism. Underline the important role that various phytochemicals and bioactive compounds play in boosting our immune system. Flavonoids are among the broad groups of phenolic substances that possess antioxidant, anticancer, antimicrobial, cytotoxic and antimutagenic properties.

Consumption of polyphenols (such as flavones-3-ols, procyanidins, catechins, flavones, resveratrol, anthocyanidins and flavanones) can help maintain the proper balance. There is increasing evidence that supplementation with some natural compounds can mimic calorie restriction, protecting mitochondrial function, reducing inflammation, chronic diseases and cancer.

www.mdpi.com/.../16219 (2022).--- onlinelibrary.wiley.com/.../fft2.129 (2022).--- www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/abs/pii/S092422442200108X (2022).---- www.mdpi.com/.../915 (2023).--- www.sciencedirect.com/.../S1568163723001022 (2023).----

Posted On 02/08/2024

GreekPrincess77

Great post Gui, Your insight is always welcomed. Traditional medicine is barbaric when treating cancer. We have more and more cancer, not less. So this notion that cancer is genetic has led them astray. Many practitioners don't want to come to terms with the fact that they are treating patients incorrectly, causing harm and death by the very treatments they have been told to use. I find that ironic given that 75/91% of doctors said they would not take chemo for themselves or give to family members.

Nutrition isn't discussed during treatment, as to how detrimental glucose is to cancer outcomes. Patients are told to keep weight on. However therapeutic weight loss is good for the body, rather than the cancer cell signaling to dissolve the muscle for it to get the glutamine the fuel it needs for its survival. Mammograms are a barbaric procedure used on woman's breasts. In fact it has been shown to cause cancer if progressively done. MRI, Ultrasound or thermography are much better options.

Posted On 02/08/2024

Guillermou

And your contributions are always of interest. Good foods, moderate exercise, and doing everything you can to get a good night's sleep. Fisetin, quercetin, epigenin and berberine as effective natural senolytics. Fisetin, an excellent antioxidant polyphenol. Several studies have confirmed that fisetin could effectively promote the elimination of senescent cells. Fisetin is also possibly a mimetic of caloric restriction: so it is possibly capable of deactivating autophagy (the mechanism of elimination of toxic elements stored in cells. Everyday foods like tea, onions, apples, and cucumbers contain fisetin, a flavonoid that is very similar to quercetin; According to experiments by researchers at the American Scripps Research Institute, fisetin can prolong life.

In this study published in the journal EBioMedicine, the compound eliminates sensitive cells and prevents tissues from functioning poorly due to the accumulation of decomposing cells. In terms of natural senolytics, we cannot fail to mention quercetin either. The elderberry This is also an excellent antioxidant - Studies have shown that quercetin possibly also has important senolytic properties. Nicotinamide (an excellent compound known to increase levels of sirtuins, called the "longevity proteins").

Posted On 02/08/2024

Guillermou

Apigenin is a compound present in vegetables and fruits that, according to a recently published laboratory study, weakens cancer cells until they become normal and deadly cells. The compound is present in parsley, celery and chamomile and weakens cancer cells. Cancer cells can lose their "superpowers" to escape death induced by our immune system or programmed cell death if they face this compound abundant in the Mediterranean diet. This compound converts cancer cells into normal cells and is therefore capable of preventing the spread of cancer.

The researchers analyzed the action of apigenin on breast cancer cells. In the experiment they were able to observe that the flavonoid bound to the hnRNPA2 protein, an important factor for the induction of the cell replication process. By binding to this protein, apigenin corrected abnormalities in the RNA and thus prevented the excessive cellular production typical of cancer. www.apjtb.org/article.asp?issn=2221-1691;year=2021;volume=11;issue=1;s.. (2021) onlinelibrary.wiley.com/.../fsn3.1872 (2021) europepmc.org/.../ppr304849 (2021)

Posted On 02/08/2024

cedricpermaculture

Hi Prof. Gui and all. Cancer is systemic disease so destroying symptom (tumor) without improving overall environment we can expect progression . That is "the wisdom of the body" (prof.Gershom Zajicek) www.what-is-cancer.com/.../perniciouscachexiasummary.html " Cancer starts as systemic deficiency. Initially it is is compensated. Then para-neoplastic symptoms accompanied by weight loss, may appear, and organism grows a tumor. When tumor is detected, cancer starts its clinical course. It ends as cachexia. New epidemiological analysis supporting this hypothesis 1. For three years following breast cancer surgery patient mortality rises whereupon it declines. 2. Tumor ablation is followed by a rising metastatic rate." what-is-cancer.com/.../epidemiologyFrame.htm

Posted On 02/08/2024

Guillermou

Thanks doctor cedricpermaculture, very interesting. Just this afternoon I read that King Charles III "does not believe in chemotherapy" and will treat cancer with "herbs and potions", according to an expert in the British Royal House. An expert on the British royal family, Tom Bower, assured that King Charles III of England "is a promoter of alternative medicine" and has always been against chemotherapy. Tom Bower, an expert on the British Royal House and author of several biographical books about the Windsors, has assured that King Charles III is a supporter of alternative medicine and has always opposed chemotherapy.

"The King will not be a supporter of chemotherapy, he has always opposed it. He is a big believer in natural herbs, potions and things like that," he noted on GB News. The biographer of the British Royal House noted that the son of Queen Elizabeth II is a "promoter of alternative medicine." "I assume that at this moment he is following the advice of a man called Michael Dixon, whom he has defended for many years and who has run his own institute of natural alternative medicine, discredited by many people," he said, later adding: "He Rey firmly believes in it www.vozpopuli.com/dolcevita/reycarlos-iii-cancer-hierbas-quimioterapi..

Posted On 02/08/2024

MariaTG

Hi Gui, I wonder why King Charles, with his natural lifestyle, was able to get cancer at all. Did he perhaps get vaccinated against Covid and accidentally got a real toxic charge instead of saline?

Posted On 02/08/2024

GoldCoaster

As soon as I heard King Charles had cancer, I wondered about his C19 vax status. Then found this- King Charles contracted the coronavirus a second time in February 2022. He had been triple-vaccinated at the time. Odd that he doesn't support chemo, and does support natural medicine, but took 3 covid jabs.

Posted On 02/08/2024

GreekPrincess77

Chemo therapy is toxic and barbaric. The idea is to build up not tear down. And quite frankly these treatments are based on the somatic theory of cancer, when in fact is a mitochondria metabolic disease. Of course chemo will cause cancer to spread. It increases the circulating and stem cell tumors, the ones that are responsible for the spread and quite resistant to treatment. All cancers are fermenters and require 2 fuels to drive their growth. Glucose and glutamine. The very treatments they use to treat cancer today, result in the rapid death of the patient.

It's not normal for patients to lose their hair, have their gums bleed, be bombarded with infections, brittle bones. Fenbendazole works quite well against cancer and is effective with metabolic therapy. I believe one of the main drivers of cancer spread (regardless of chemo being offered prior) is the biopsy itself. That in of itself disrupts the micro-environment of the tumor. Many cancers become quite aggressive after biopsy. Liquid biopsies are becoming popular.

But the whole system needs to come a part. Even immuno-therapies are based on the somatic mutation theory, but in reality the patients that do well on these therapies usually illicit a high fever. People that go through conventional medicine, usually pay a big price (if they don't die from treatment) years later with secondary cancers. Every institute states cancer is genetic, not metabolic. They are chasing the secondary causes, not the prime cause. It's a dysfunctional mitochondria that is responsible for cell growth.

When that organel becomes corrupt it can no longer control cell growth. Even something as simple as eliciting a fever in the body, will cause cancer to die. Seed oils are a major driver of metabolic dysfunction. Go to any health care setting that's all their food is cooked in, fed sugar-laced/seed oil "nutritional drinks" like Ensure or Glucerna. Alternative medicine works better prior to poisoning the body with conventional medicine.

Posted On 02/08/2024

Guillermou

We have a Natural medicine that communicates with cellular nature. We can also consider some supplements or foods high in apigenin such as chamomile, parsley, celery, mint and citrus fruits. The researchers analyzed the action of apigenin on breast cancer cells. The flavonoid bound to the hnRNPA2 protein, an important factor for the induction of the cell replication process. By binding to this protein, apigenin corrected abnormalities in the RNA and thus prevented the excessive cellular production typical of cancer. www.pnas.org/.../pnas.1303726110 (2017).-- www.nature.com/.../s41419-023-06342-6 (2023).-- In this study, a meta-analysis is performed to systematically evaluate the efficacy and therapeutic potential of apigenin in various types of cancer.

Meta-analysis suggested that apigenin has a significant anticancer effect in animal models of cancer. The results show that apigenin inhibits tumor volume, tumor weight, tumor number. This is due to the anti-apoptotic, anti-proliferative and anti-invasive properties of apigenin.

www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/abs/pii/S1040842822001755 (2022), Spermidine supplementation improves mitochondrial metabolism and translational activity.

The anti-cancer properties of spermidine are of particular interest as it is known to reduce cancer-related mortality in humans. Spermidine specifically interferes with the tumor cell cycle, resulting in inhibition of tumor cell proliferation and suppression of tumor growth. Furthermore, it also triggers autophagy by regulating key oncological pathways. Increased intake of polyamines, such as spermidine, can suppress oncogenesis and slow tumor growth due to its role in anticancer immunosurveillance and regulation of polyamine metabolism. www.frontiersin.org/.../full (2023)

Posted On 02/08/2024

JohnDodo

Aspirin is also coming into the fray for cancer treatments. I presume it has been suppressed all this time as it's a no-profit treatment.

Posted On 02/08/2024

Hippocrates460

Yes, JohnDodo, in several ways. Dr. Vikas Sukhatme, a physician and dean at Emory University School of Medicine, looked closely into breast cancer deaths after his wife's best friend passed away from cancer at a relatively young age after having been 'successfully' treated for early-stage breast cancer. BTW, most of the deaths from breast cancer happen in cases where the cancer was caught at an early stage. Sukhatme came to learn that there's a strong link between surgery and risk for later recurrence and metastasis apparently due to the nature of cancer being similar to a wound that responds to cytokines released by our stem cells during healing.

This response to surgery in breast cancer patients (also observed in a study involving sham surgery in rodents injected with cancer cells) seems to trigger the establishment and growth of cancer cells. The good news is NSAIDs given at the time of surgery appear to strongly blunt this process in breast cancer patients. Perhaps this also applies in other types of cancer, but AFAIK that hasn't been studied yet as there is no profit to be made. Here's a link to Dr Sukhatme's presentation.

www.youtube.com/watch?v=H8zVrYEW8vE&ab_channel=MITLaboratoryforFin..

Posted On 02/08/2024

Hippocrates460

Sorry, the formatting of my first comment came out differently than it appeared when I submitted it and I am unable to edit it. I'm hopeful the message is still clear. Thanks.

Posted On 02/08/2024

pjucla

Downstaging initially used to shrink a tumor , depending on the cancer type to surgically remove I agree and unfortunately downstaging and giving chemo just . Well follow the money . Here's a kicker you used to give radiation for palliative care for severe bone pain and now nayyyyy just give the person so much pain meds till they can't breath . Healthcare can be inhumane. Nayyyy .. criminal.

Posted On 02/08/2024

MMWest10

I read all these comments, and I have to wonder: how is it that there is so much knowledge out there about wrong treatments, and yet our medical establishment seems to be so ignorant about all this?? I'm currently healthy, but I gotta tell you I'm scared that if I did ever get diagnosed with cancer, I feel like I would be so hosed because I don't really understand all these medical opinions on better cancer management, and after the Covid debacle, I don't think I can ever trust the medical establishment again.

Posted On 02/09/2024

Jackaroni

My cousin was treated breast cancer which then went into remission. When the cancer returned she joined a study to see if doubling the strength of the chemotherapy would work better. It did not. The chemotherapy killed her, not the cancer. I also have a friend that was treated for breast cancer with chemotherapy and radiation. The cancer was cured, but the radiation therapy left her with congestive heart failure.

Posted On 02/08/2024

GreekPrincess77

This tends to be where most people fall into when they do conventional therapy. Sometimes they do survive treatment, but their bodies pay a heavy price for it. A simple breast massage of the breast/nipples for 10 minutes a day reduces the incidence of this type of cancer by 98%, as well as breast feeding and both sides is best, because if cancer is diagnosed its usually on the side that wasn't used to breast feed. Death is actually listed as a side affect of chemo, yet they continue to poison people with these useless treatments that are considered the "standard of care" but tend to cause the rapid deaths of patients.

Posted On 02/08/2024

Sad to say but most 'conventional' doctors are just experimenting with you and your health...if they are not conducting their own experiment...then they are taking the 'facts' that some other doctor has written about being successful in some 'science' journal. Why not do some of your own 'experimenting'? At least there is no one else responsible for you and your health...and IMHO you are just as likely to hit on something that helps or cures as any 'conventional' doctor is! How many times has your doctor said, "Let's try this drug and see how we come out?" I'm guessing more than most people realize...These doctors are not living in your skin so they don't really know what you are suffering from...they are comparing you with other patients and what other doctors have reported about their patients...don't get me wrong--I'm not against doctors--they have their place--especially if you are injured or in a dire circumstance...but I try to put my faith in my body's responses that I have learned to 'listen' to over the years...(77--almost 78) and most of what my docs have wanted me to try sent my body into rebellion--hives, nausea, diarrhea, even so far as a coma...but I have learned and am still learning what my body needs and wants and I try to provide it...

Posted On 02/08/2024
